

PRESS RELEASE

TXT Polymedia Web Portal Edition

The integration of video and portal content management

Milan – November 24, 2006

Polymedia Web Portal Edition has been designed for businesses with a constantly evolving web presence, bearing complex and extended features, and calling for the management of both users and accesses. The solution combines the power of TXT Polymedia content management platform with market products for portal operations.

Furthermore, the conception of high-performance, easy-to-use, reliable multi-media content management portals is now possible thanks to the Polymedia Web Portal Edition; other options include video for the supply of services such as business television and advanced e-learning. Needless to add, the suite complies with the information workflow typical of each company.

Portal development is easy and quick consequent to Polymedia modelling characteristics that ensure a rapid time-to-market. Publishing tools may be utilized directly by those generating the information: the whole process lasts a very short time. Therefore, the basin of those contributing to the portal with news and information is widened and work procedures become more ground-breaking and collaborative. The end result is higher quality of service for users.

In virtue of Polymedia multichannel characteristics, contents are made immediately available for multiple devices other than web utilization. These are managed automatically and are up to standards.

As Mr. Tullio Pirovano, TXT Polymedia Executive Vice President & General Manager states: "TXT Polymedia Web Portal Edition consolidates all the experience accrued over the past years by working side by side with innovator clients. An analysis of their needs, the requirements of both in-house and external users, the definition of new work models and tools are values that we have embedded into our platform which is contemporaneously simple, agile and rich in functionalities, whilst responding to all the needs of the most discerning enterprises".
